LOCKHART JUNCTION

Lockhart Junction, July 31.—We are having a few days fair weather at this time and the farmers have gone to work again and it seems the hardest work has just begun as the crops are very grassy and it will take hard work to clean them. It does seem the farmers have had a tough old time of it this year. Once so dry and then again so wet, but it seems that they have been so patient in looking to the greatest powers of the world to make a chance, so as the old saying goes, "The darkest hour is just before day," and every cloud has its silver lining. There have been many happenings and calamities this year; all for the best we hope. The Bible tells us that we will be beaten with many stripes, so some of us have been beaten already, don't you think? So as a father chastises his children God may be chastising us. Life is a school. Events are teachers. Are we not learning?

As this writer sits in the lonely cottage today, that stands by the road his thoughts go back to bygone days. And it does seem to me there is an inspiration comes to me as I write and my thoughts are many and too numerous to write, but this makes us think of life and how we have lived that life and how we should live the life in the future. Have you thought of neglected opportunities? Have you ever thought about the good deeds you have done and those we have neglected to do. We go along in a sort of haphazard way, not stopping to think about this old self of ours. We are sometimes so selfish that we never care or think of the other fellow's troubles until it comes to our own door.

I think sometime how weak and foolish we poor mortals are. We should all live to be a better people. Rev. J. H. Steen of Columbia, Tenn., is preaching at Jonesville, helping Rev. Porter in a protracted meeting held in the Presbyterian church, preaching about three sermons a day, two at the church and one on the public streets near the depot. I listened to his sermon at the depot today. This preacher means something. Those who don't go to hear him at the church will hear him on the street. He is going after them. I heard a man say he knew a fellow that hadn't been to church in a good long time, was going down on the street to listen to him, and he believed the preaching had made some good impression on him.

I met Miss Carrie Going of Kelton and Miss Willie Levister of Carlisle at the Junction today. Miss Levister spent the week-end with Miss Going and now Miss Going goes home with her to teach school near Carlisle.

Mr. B. F. Miller, who is a veterinary surgeon, says he has a great deal of sickness among the cows, horses and mules. He says he goes far and near and has been up in York county. Mr. Miller is a veterinary surgeon by practice and experience; says he has his medical books, reads some, but he has had many years' experience for his father was a cattle man when he was a boy and has learned more by experience. Says if anyone has sick cattle he can treat them; has medicine to apply internally and externally.

The Gault school opens the summer session this morning with Mr. C. A. Erwin of Cleveland, N. C., as principal, Miss Lois Allman of Jonesville, teacher of the intermediate grade and Miss Irene Kirby of Cherokee, primary teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Vinson of the New Hope section were visitors in this section Sunday and attended Sunday school.

Miss Bennie Garner of Cherokee county is visiting her sister, Mrs. R. L. White, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Fowler and family have our sympathy in the death of their son.

Mr. Leaster, the superintendent of the cotton mill at Jonesville, with his family and his wife's father came down in his car to visit the writer last week. We were glad to have them visit us. Come again any time.

OLD-FASHIONED ROSES.

They ain't no style about 'em,
And they're sort o' pale and faded,
Yit the doorway, here, without 'em
Would be lonesomer and shaded
With a good 'eal blacker shadder
Than the morning glories makes,
And the sunshine would look sadder
For their good old-fashion' sakes.

I like 'em 'cause they kinde—
Sort o' make a feller like 'em!
And I tell you, when I find a
Bunch out whur the sun kin strike
'em
It alluss sets me thinkin'
O' the ones 'at used to grow
And peck in thro' the chinkin'
O' the cabin, don't you know!

And then I think o' Mother,
And how she use to love 'em—
When they wuzn't any other,
'Less she found 'em up above 'em!
And her eyes, afore she shut 'em,
Whispered with a smile and said
We must pick a bunch and put 'em
In her hand when she wuz dead.

But, as I wuz a-sayin'
They ain't no style about 'em
Very gaudy er displayin',
But I wouldn't be without 'em—
'Cause I'm happier in these posies,
Than the hummin' 'bird 'at noses
In the roses of the rich.

TRAXLER WILL CARRY GREENVILLE COUNTY BY TWO THOUSAND

Made Wonderful Campaign in Home County.

(Political Advertisement).

The official congressional campaign in Greenville county is ended, and it is evident to even the most superficial observer that Dave Traxler will carry the county by the biggest majority given a congressional candidate in twenty years.

He has surprised even his closest friends, for even these did not know his skill as a getter of votes.

Traxler had all the winning cards when he first entered the race. He had the moral endorsement of the administration in Washington; he had letters from the highest officials in the postoffice department to the effect that, during his term as postmaster of Greenville, he had been one of the most effective and efficient postmasters in the United States; he had the assurance that Blease and anti-Blease lines would be drawn by the voters, and that the Blease voters were outnumbered; and finally he had the race to make against a man who has done absolutely nothing while congressman.

Mr. Traxler believes that immediately after the close of the war in Europe untold thousands of Europe's lowest classes will rush to this country to escape burdensome taxes, and that wages will drop to the ground as a result. He will, if elected to Congress, introduce a bill to keep out all immigrants for a period of ten years, following the war.

He believes in federal aid for schools. He believes that all text books should be furnished free, and that the government should support in each small district literary and industrial schools to the colleges of today, in order that the poorest citizen might educate his children.

The people know that he has served his party well. They know that he has succeeded in every job he has ever undertaken. They believe he is clean; that he is dependable, and that he is a gentleman in private as well as in public.

If he keeps up his present gait until the close of the campaign, he will win in the first primary.

But if he should split the vote fairly even with his opponents, in the other counties, his majority in Greenville county will probably insure his election.

WHY SHE OBJECTED.

"I hear that Florrie has broken off her engagement with you, old chap," said one man to another.

"Yes," replied the second.

"I say, I'm awfully sorry to hear it. Whatever did she quit for?"

"Just because I stole a kiss," said the disconsolate one, sadly.

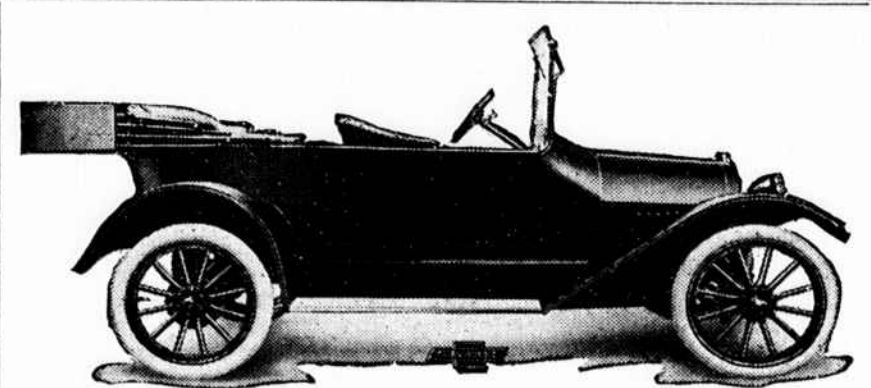

"Great Scott!" exclaimed his friend. "Surely she must be crazy if she objects to her fiancé stealing a kiss from her."

The abandoned one sighed deeply.

"But that's just the trouble," he said. "I didn't steal it from her!"
